Acceptance

By downloading, accessing, or using MedRecord, you agree to these Terms of Use and the MedRecord Privacy Policy. If you do not agree, do not use the app. Apple's standard Licensed Application End User License Agreement also applies unless a different license is presented through the App Store.

Purpose of the app

MedRecord is a personal recordkeeping tool that helps users organize medication details, schedules, dose logs, allergies, surgeries, doctor contacts, and reports. It is not a healthcare provider, pharmacy, emergency service, diagnostic system, prescribing system, or dosage calculator.

No medical advice

Information displayed by MedRecord, including medication details and openFDA adverse-event terms, is provided for organization and reference only. It is not medical advice and must not be used to diagnose a condition, start or stop a medication, change a dose, or delay professional care. Always verify medication instructions with the prescribing clinician or dispensing pharmacy.

For a medical emergency, contact local emergency services. Do not rely on MedRecord as the only source of information needed for urgent or ongoing care.

User responsibility

- Enter and maintain accurate information.
- Review records and reports before relying on or sharing them.
- Protect the device, local account password, printed reports, and exported files.
- Keep an independent copy of information needed for care.
- Use the app only in compliance with applicable law and the rights of other people.

Local accounts, passwords, and recovery

MedRecord accounts and records are stored locally on the device. The operator does not maintain a cloud account service and cannot remotely recover a local password, decrypt device records, restore a deleted account, or transfer the device-bound encryption key.

Uninstalling the app may permanently remove local records and the encryption key. If records cannot be opened, preserve the app and device before seeking support.

openFDA information

An optional openFDA lookup sends a medication name to api.fda.gov after a user disclosure. Returned adverse-event terms are reports submitted to the FDA and do not prove causation, frequency, comparative safety, or suitability for a particular person. Availability and accuracy of third-party data are outside MedRecord's control.

Camera, printing, and sharing

Camera access is optional. Printing, exporting, or sharing creates copies outside MedRecord's encrypted record store. You are responsible for selecting secure destinations, reviewing the contents, and protecting copies after they leave the app.

Acceptable use

You may not misuse MedRecord, interfere with its operation, attempt unauthorized access to another person's records, violate intellectual-property rights, use the app for unlawful activity, or represent its output as a diagnosis, prescription, or verified clinical record when it is not one.

Ownership and third-party services

MedRecord and its original software, design, and documentation are protected by applicable intellectual-property laws. Third-party names, services, and content remain the property of their respective owners. Links or references to third-party services do not constitute medical endorsement.

Availability and changes

The app may be updated, suspended, or discontinued. Features may depend on the device, operating system, network access, Apple services, or third-party services. The operator does not promise uninterrupted availability or that every error can be corrected.

Disclaimers and limitation of liability

To the maximum extent permitted by applicable law, MedRecord is provided as available and without warranties beyond those that cannot legally be excluded. The operator is not responsible for medical decisions, treatment outcomes, inaccurate user entries, third-party data, loss caused by deletion or device failure, or disclosure resulting from a user's export or sharing choice. Nothing in these terms limits rights or liability that applicable law does not permit to be limited.

Account deletion and termination

You may delete a local account through Settings by entering the current password, typing DELETE, and confirming. Deletion removes the selected local account and app-managed records from the device but does not retrieve or erase copies previously printed, exported, shared, or sent to support.

Changes to these terms

These terms may be updated to reflect app changes or legal requirements. A revised effective date will identify the current version. Continued use after an update means you accept the revised terms to the extent permitted by law.
